Pilot:Joined the Air Transport Auxiliary in 1940, with the hazardous job of ferrying all types of aircraft from factories to Aircraft Storage Units and despatch points, and on to operational stations...She was first deputy and then commanding officer of the inaugural women's Ferry Pool at Hatfield, and in 1943 became Commander of the No 12 Ferry Pool at Cosford, one of only two women pool commanders in the whole ATA...

...By mid 1941 Marion Wilberforce was flying operational machines including Hurricanes and Spitfires which she piloted as a matter of course. The first Spitfire she flew was donated by the citizens of Grimsby and accordingly called Grimsby II. During 1942 she mastered the whole gamut of twin engined medium bombers including the Wellington and Mosquito. Two years later she became one of only eleven women pilots trained to fly four engined bombers such as the Lancaster...

...When she was eighty she decided that the time had come to give up flying...In peace time she was best known in aviation as someone who did was she was not meant to do, whether it was skating the ground at two hundred feet to avoid radar when on a route she shouldn't have been on, or disrupting a NATO exercise.

Hunting: She took to the field in about 1933. From 1968 to 1982 she was on the committee of the Essex Union Hunt, becoming the only female Master of the Fox Hounds (between 1968 and 1970) in the hunt's entire two hundred and thirty six year history before its amalgamation with the Farmers in 1988. She had been a fearless rider, and tough. In her seventies she fell into a ditch breaking her collar bone. She re-mounted and completed the hunt before taking herself to hospital. She only stopped hunting in her early eighties having taken yet another fall and broken more bones.

Chadwick’s predecessor at Liverpool was Lionel Wilberforce, a former research colleague of J. J.Thomson. In addition to a wide knowledge of walks and climbs in the Lake District, Wilberforce was an expert with the diabolo. This Victorian toy, which comprises two cones joined at the tips, can be spun, tossed and caught on a string attached to two sticks, one in each hand. An eyewitness once reported him standing on the lecture bench, using his diabolo to demonstrate principles of dynamics, much as Professor Taylor-Jones used to do at Glasgow University, seated on a rotating stool! - Dr Harry Stout.

On her death, the Daily Telegraph published the following obituary: ‘Frances Murphy, the arachnologist who has died aged 69, was - with her pet tarantula, Patricia- a frequent guest on television and radio programmes. A specialist in spider-rearing, in 1980 Murphy produced the useful guide Keeping Spiders, Insects and Other Land Invertebrates in Captivity, which gave advice to those wishing to keep such creatures in the home rather than the laboratory. She was also an adept photographer, and many of her spider photographs have appeared in natural history journals. She was educated at St James's, West Malvern, and Bedford College, London University, where she read mathematics. She then took a job as a systems analyst, working on wire-guided missiles. But she was more passionate about her spare time activities, and in the early 1960s her interest in bird life shifted to spiders and other arachnids. In her efforts to encourage others to take an interest in spiders, she conducted many weekend spider courses in the Field Studies Council's centres. She held the distinction of being the first woman president of the British Entomological and Natural History Society, despite the fact that she was not an entomologist. The Joint Committee for the Conservation of British Invertebrates also benefited from her intelligence and humour. She was a founder member of both the British and the American Arachnological Societies, as well as of the Friends of the Natural History Museum. She was especially concerned that the museum should maintain its collections and remain a leading scientific institution. At the time of her death she was preparing a book on the spiders of Malaysia.’

1.5.4.5.4.1. Frances Mary Wrangham was born on 29 Apr 1926. On her death, the Daily Telegraph published the following obituary: "Frances Murphy, the arachnologist who has died aged 69, was -with her pet tarantula, Patricia- a frequent guest on television and radio programmes. A specialist in spider-rearing, in 1980 Murphy produced the useful guide Keeping Spiders, Insects and Other Land Invertebrates in Captivity, which gave advice to those wishing to keep such creatures in the home rather than the laboratory. She was also an adept photographer, and many of her spider photographs have appeared in natural history journals. She was educated at St James's, West Malvern, and Bedford College, London University, where she read mathematics. She then took a job as a systems analyst, working on wire-guided missiles. But she was more passionate about her spare time activities, and in the early 1960s her interest in bird life shifted to spiders and other arachnids. In her efforts to encourage others to take an interest in spiders, she conducted many weekend spider courses in the Field Studies Council's centres. She held the distinction of being the first woman president of the British Entomological and Natural History Society, despite the fact that she was not an entomologist. The Joint Committee for the Conservation of British Invertebrates also benefited from her intelligence and humour. She was a founder member of both the British and the American Arachnological Societies, as well as of the Friends of the Natural History Museum. She was especially concerned that the museum should maintain its collections and remain a leading scientific institution. At the time of her death she was preparing a book on the spiders of Malaysia."
